Located at 5,434m/17,795ft, Cerro el Plomo is an impressive mountain that sits to the northeast of Santiago and affords great views of the high mountains of Central Chile and Argentina, such as Aconcagua and Tupungato. On a clear day, Cerro el Plomo is the largest visible peak from the city of Santiago and makes for an achievable acclimatisation climb prior to your Aconcagua expedition.

HISTORY

Cerro el Plomo was first climbed by Europeans at the end of the 19th century, with a summit by Gustav Brandt and Rudolph Lucke in 1896. However, prior to this, the Incas has climbed to Cerro el Plomo's summit periodically throughout the 15th century, leaving traces of their presence on the mountain to be found by early mountaineers and prospectors. This culminated in 1954 with the discovery of a shrine and the body of a child that had been sacrificed by the Incas in honour of the Sun God, Inti.

HOW THE EXPEDITION OPERATES

The expedition starts and ends in Santiago, the capital of Chile and fifth largest city in South America, and it is here we spend our first day.

In Santiago, we have time to finalise our equipment, have a team briefing and undertake a tour of the city. With no shortage of cultural sights and gastronomic delights, this is a city with a lot to offer.

The following day, we enjoy the Chilean scenery with our guide as we make our way to the Valle Nevado. We load up the mules with equipment and start the trek towards Piedra Numerada (3,370m/11,056ft), where we will camp overnight. This is our base for a further night as we enjoy a day hike to gain valuable acclimatisation.

It is then onwards to Base Camp at Federaciones (4,000m/13,100ft) at the foot of El Plomo. From here, we take in the magnificent views of the valley and its hanging glaciers. We spend another day acclimatising here, with an optional ascent of Mount Leonera (4,975m/16,322ft), after which it is up early for the summit attempt.

Enroute to the summit, we will have the opportunity to visit the site where the preserved remains of the Incan mummy were discovered in 1954. Once on the summit, we will be rewarded with stunning views of the central Andes and, on a clear day, we may be lucky enough to see Aconcagua to the north.

We descend to Base Camp and prepare for the final day's travel back to Valle Nevado and Santiago.

to meticulous planning and experienced logistics coordination. We have a philosophy of investing in every expedition to offer our climbers the best possible chance of success.

We employ strong and specialised Expedition Leaders and staff, who are some of the most pre-eminent in the industry. We pride ourselves on operating with small teams, with the best backup and support available. This includes nutritious and ample quantities of food, comfortable Base Camp facilities, reliable communications systems and the necessary medical back up.

Many of our expedition members come to us because they have seen us in action on a previous trip and decide to opt for our level of service and proven experience. Others return because they know we do our very best to make expeditions safe and successful.

FOOD

Food during the mountain phase of the expedition is prepared by the guides. Please indicate any specific dietary requirements you may have on your application form. For special diets such as vegan and gluten/dairy free, we will call you to discuss your needs and how this will work in a group cooking situation. If your dietary requirements are especially strict, you are advised to bring a sufficient supply of your required food types with you to ensure you are provided for.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION

Expedition members will be provided with a medical questionnaire and asked to visit their family physician to receive a full medical examination. This information will be sighted by our medical adviser and the guides only and is treated with full confidentiality. Advice on immunisations will be provided at this time.

VISAS

Generally, entry visas are not required for visitors to Chile staying less than three months, but please check with your travel agent for the latest information according to your nationality.
